Achieving Value through Independent Thought

- Mikolaj Kopernik (Nicolaus Copernicus), proposed the heliocentric model of the universe in the early 1500s. He trusted his own observations instead of accepting what “everyone” thought to be true. He faced scorn for his “novel and incomprehensible” theses. Though primarily an astronomer, Kopernik set forth a version of the “quantity theory of money,” an economics concept still used today, and he also formulated an early version of Gresham’s Law.
- As independent thinkers, Kopernik Global Investors honours Copernicus in the contemporary investment world. Kopernik believes that accomplished investors who trust their own analyses and instincts, can generate significant excess returns as a result of market inefficiencies, driven by erroneous professional and academic theories and practices.

Like our namesake, we are dedicated to reasoning over convention and to clients’ needs above convenience.

Investment Strategy

“Sustainable investment success and low correlations to other managers are the likely outcome of a distinctive philosophy consistently implemented by skilled investors”

Kopernik views itself as owners of businesses:

- Market inefficiencies present numerous opportunities to identify quality businesses at attractive prices
- Independent research of a company’s business, industry supply/demand, competitive positioning and management allows Kopernik to uncover these opportunities

Kopernik predicates its intensive, original research on:

- A global perspective to enhance understanding of markets and companies
- A long-term investment horizon to allow for inherent value to be realised
- Value as a prerequisite, not a philosophy
- Bottom-up, fundamental analysis to gain a thorough, forward-looking understanding of a company’s business and valuation
- Industry-tailored valuation metrics to assess distinct industry characteristics and success drivers

Investment Strategy

1. Extensive Global Investment Universe

All-Cap Global Equities across Developed, Emerging and Frontier Markets

2. Intensive, Original Research

- Analyst Driven Conduct research with highly skilled global industry experts
Thinking independently often leads to many non-consensus portfolio holdings
- Qualitative Focus on sustainability (supply and demand, barriers to entry, management, substitutability)
Allocate capital globally, benefiting from economic comparative advantages and specific country pricing anomalies
Integration of Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) principles consistent with our overall investment approach-conviction that the companies in which we invest should act ethically and in the best interest of all corporate stakeholders across the value chain, including employees, customers, suppliers, community members, the government, and shareholders
- Quantitative Apply industry-tailored valuation metrics
Assess multiple metrics:(price/earnings, cash flow, book value, liquidation value, replacement value, scenario analysis)
Buy below and sell above intrinsic value
- Risk Adjusting Require a discount appropriate for the level of uncertainty (management, financial, competitive issues, geopolitical)
- Vetting Meet daily as a team to vet ideas and holdings. Elicit group input and rigorous debate

Risk adjusting

Certainty of Value (COV) is a risk adjustment tool Kopernik utilises to quantify the margin of safety we demand to invest in a company's security.

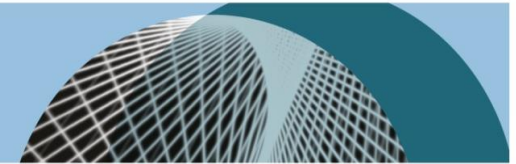

- Identify key specific risk factors and assign a weight to each risk factor
- Assign a score to each risk factor (0 = extremely risky and 10 = riskless)
- Calculate the composite COV score, the product of each risk factor times the risk factor's weighting
- The final step is to calculate the Risk Adjusted Intrinsic Value (RAIV), derived as a product of Theoretical Value times COV

This is shown visually on a Discount to Intrinsic Value vs. COV Matrix (adjacent).

Discount to Intrinsic Value vs Certainty of Value (COV)

Discerning Real from Perceived Risks

Kopernik addresses real risks by

- Understanding the companies it owns
- Paying less than its estimate of intrinsic value
- Actively managing well-diversified portfolios

The Kopernik Principles of Real versus Perceived Risks

Kopernik views risk as the possibility of a permanent loss of purchasing power

Kopernik assesses risk in a portfolio context

- A security with downside possibilities and large upside potential can be risky as a single holding
When held in a well-diversified portfolio, however, the risk diminishes substantially while the upside potential remains large

Tracking error can threaten an asset manager's business model and individual's career risk, but is not risky for an individual portfolio

- Low tracking error can be risky when the benchmark itself is overpriced

Kopernik seeks to capitalize on the fact that what is 'risky' to short-term investors may not be 'risky' to long-term investors

- Volatility is risky to those with a short-term time horizon, not to those with a longer horizon
- Low liquidity is risky for those who always need immediate access to their capital

Objectives and Guidelines of the Fund*

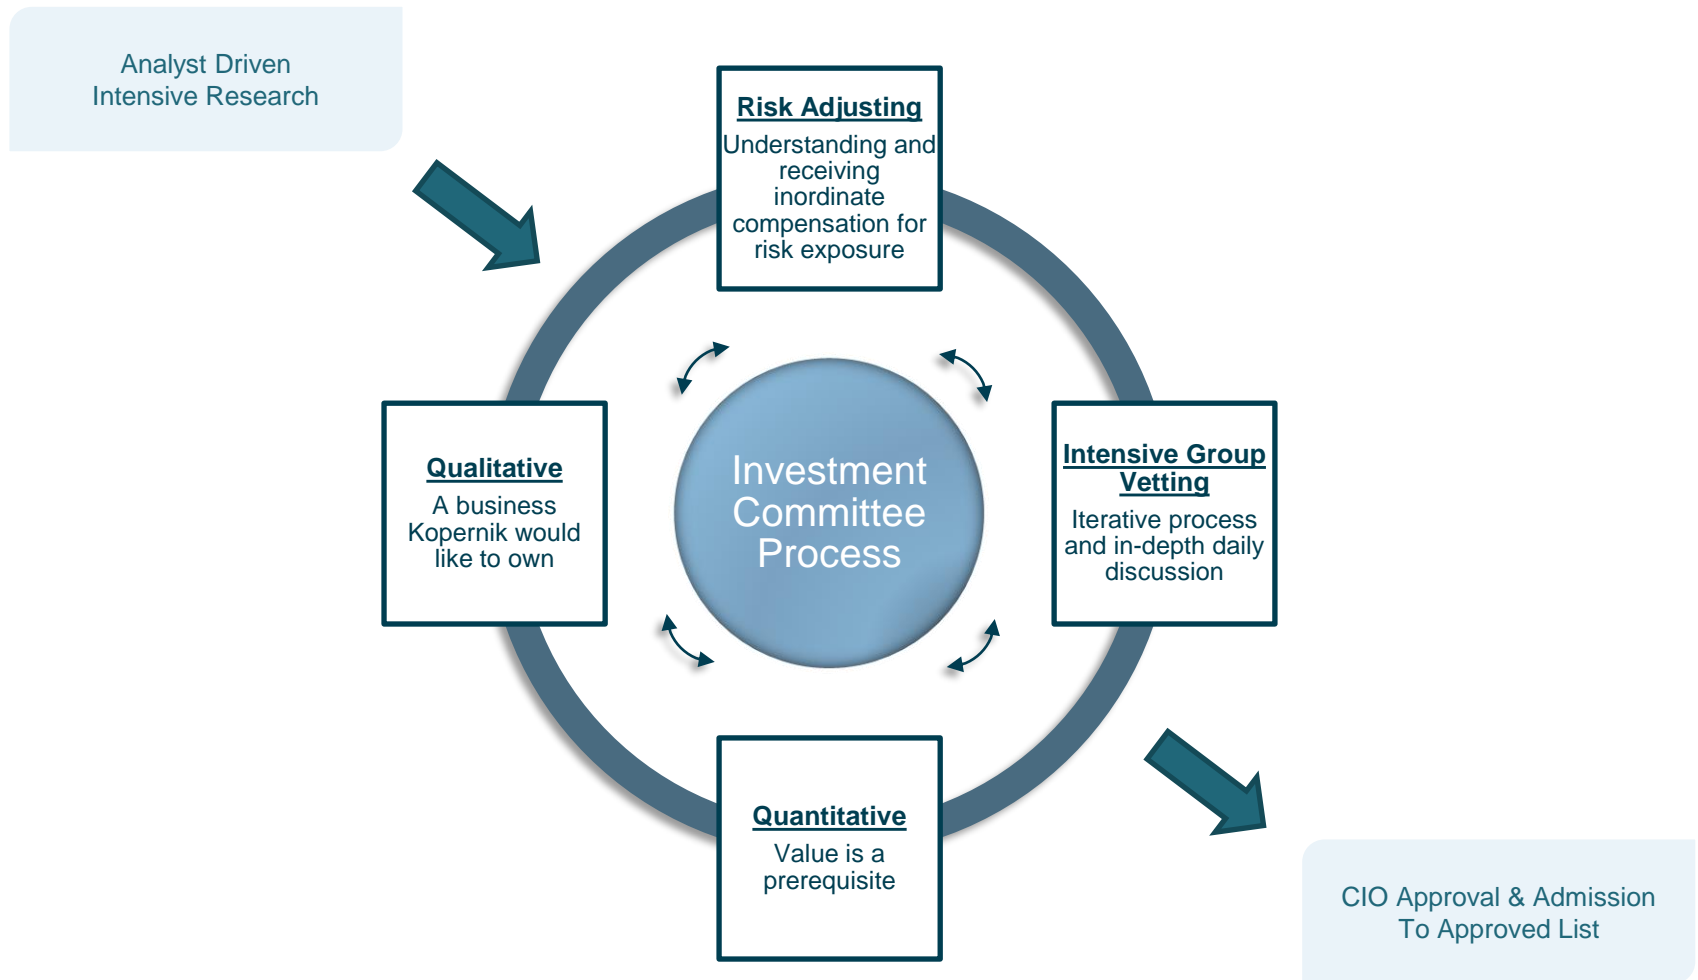

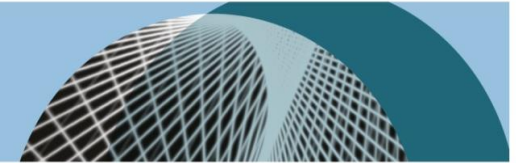

- Kopernik seeks to achieve its investment objective, of long-term capital appreciation over time, through an active, research-driven, fundamentals-based, value-oriented investment process focussing on equities across the globe
- Kopernik adheres to this disciplined, value-driven investment strategy that emphasizes securities chosen through in-depth research, and follows those securities over time to assess whether they continue to meet the purchase rationale
- The manager may occasionally make use of convertible securities on an opportunistic basis as an alternative to the underlying equity, in addition to also considering securities across a company's capital structure

Concentration limits	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The Fund will invest at least 40% in securities of issuers based outside the U.S.• Maximum of 6% in any one issuer• Typically the Fund holds between 50 and 100 stocks
Anticipated annual turnover	25% to 100% (during volatile markets more opportunities tend to present themselves, leading to higher turnover)
Maximum weights	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Industry: 26%• Sector: 31%• Country: 36%

Adhering to a Proven Investment Process

Security selection and portfolio construction

Purchases

The manager selects equity securities through bottom-up fundamental research

The research driven investment process seeks to add value through active management and by selecting securities of companies that, in the manager's opinion, are misperceived and undervalued by the market

The manager's research analysts constantly evaluate companies within their defined investable universe based upon a variety of both qualitative and quantitative criteria

- Quantitative measures include price-to-earnings, price-to-book, price to sales, price to net-present value, price-to-free cash flow, sustainable dividend yield and price to liquidation/replacement value
- The qualitative analysis assists the research team in producing an understanding of franchise quality, management strength, corporate strategy, barriers-to-entry, shareholder value orientation, operating and industry fundamentals and competitive advantage

Sell Discipline

- Valuation: Stocks eliminated when the security's value has appreciated and approached the manager's estimated intrinsic value
- Fundamentals: Generally stocks are sold when fundamentals deteriorate
- Substitution Swap: Stocks eliminated if the manager believes that it has found a better alternative
